

A COMPLETE E-DISCOVERY SOLUTION

What's in It for Inside Counsel

As your company's volume of electronic information continues to grow, identifying and collecting the data that's relevant to litigation, internal investigations, or data remediation can be a challenge. e-Discovery platforms built to handle big data at the processing, review, and analysis stages have expanded end-to-end, giving corporate counsel a new choice for identification, preservation, and collection. Here are a few areas in which an e-discovery solution excels:

Litigation and Document Review

- Easy ways to deploy either hosted or in house means you can get to work quickly, and a fully integrated platform means you can safely transfer data along every stage of the process.
- Using software rooted in the legal community makes it easy to scale up and find additional support as needed.
- Cases continue to grow, and using software designed to manage big data ensures you're prepared for the increasing number of documents, storage locations, and custodians in your environment.

Information Governance and Data Remediation

- The ability to analyze electronically stored information with a collection tool allows you to proactively manage your data and run efficient data remediation projects. Customizable controls allow you to clean out unneeded data and reduce storage costs and risk according to your company's unique data deletion policies.
- With a platform solution, processing and analytics features are within arm's reach, providing a cohesive experience with a minimal learning curve. You can filter, review, and audit documents for quick and cost-effective information governance projects, such as mergers and acquisitions.

Compliance and Internal Investigations

- The right legal hold product can also be used to track and report on compliance. Your teams can import up-to-date information from your HR system and use message and questionnaire templates to communicate quickly and easily with employees.
- Targeted collection allows you to securely identify and collect data during internal investigations or employee exit procedures.
- Analytics features speed up your investigation by identifying conceptual relationships between documents and quickly finding red flags, reducing the need to manually dig through documents.

Products from end-to-end e-discovery platforms not only keep inside counsel ahead of the information curve, but also allow them to coordinate more efficiently with outside counsel and meet information governance needs. A comprehensive and flexible solution like Relativity can make all the difference in solving your company's vexing data and risk management problems.
